

Versatec Shelving System

Each unit comes with an attractive fascia panel for guiding, while unit ends can be used for either guiding, or alternatively graphics.

Where the Versatec system differs from other ranges is that the wall units are hinged so that they lock shut, creating spaces into which island units can be slotted and then also locked into place.

This means that the entire library stock is secured around the perimeter of a room leaving space in the centre for other activities.

The Versatec range of shelving is a unique foldaway system that is ideal if you want to create a library within a multi function space.

Versatec consists of a carcass or bookcase with all the features that you expect from a Point Eight Library shelving system, including fully adjustable shelves that can be flipped over to display either smaller, typically paperback formats or larger hardback books

In addition shelves can be set horizontally or angled for improved presentation, particularly useful at lower levels to aid DDA compliance.

This system is perfect for a community library where space is required for a range of activities, or a school where space is at a premium and there is nowhere to site a dedicated library space.
